Policy

1.0 Introduction

- 1.1 Craigdale Housing Association (CHA) recognise the importance of ensuring all employees who take up a new post or return from an extended break are welcomed and supported, so that they can begin their work in a positive environment.
- 1.2 This policy aims to clarify the support provided and the responsibility of all parties in ensuring induction is job relevant, captures relevant department and corporate level information and is completed satisfactorily. If an appropriate induction is not provided or an employee does not engage in the induction process it must be raised immediately and will be dealt with as a performance matter.
- 1.3 CHA acknowledges its responsibility to encourage and support continuing professional development for all employees, articulated in the Training and Development Strategy/Plan. The provision of appropriate induction is the first in a programme of opportunities for staff.

2.0 Purpose

- 2.1 Induction is the process by which an employee is integrated into the organisation and ensures they have the knowledge and skills to perform their role safely and understand the values and principles of the organisation. Induction should be viewed as a continuous process starting with the first contact with the employee following the completion of the selection process. The length of the programme will vary according to the complexity of the job and the employee's previous experience however for the purposes of the Corporate Induction, the necessary information and activities outlined below ought to be completed within 6 weeks from commencement.
- 2.2 The Induction process should assist the employee to perform their role effectively, achieve job satisfaction and provide a platform to facilitate them to demonstrate their competencies during the probationary period.

3.0 Scope

- 3.1 This policy applies to all new employees, existing employees who move to a different role within the Association and employees returning to work after an extended break absence.
- 3.2 Some employees may need additional support to meet their needs, for example, employee's with mobility issues.

4.0 Objectives

- 4.1 To support the integration of new staff into CHA and to help them perform effectively.
- 4.2 To foster an early appreciation of CHA's role and functions and vision.
- 4.3 To provide information on CHA's values, policies and procedures, practices and strategic objectives.
- 4.4 To help define performance expectations, maintain motivation and foster good working relationships.

- 4.5 To provide new staff with learning, development and training opportunities which will support them in performing their duties effectively.
- 4.6 To identify and find solutions to any difficulties encountered by new staff.

Induction Procedure

5.0 Induction Timetable

- 5.1 The induction process should begin before the person has started. This includes offer letters and information from the Corporate Team and ensuring induction arrangements are in place in line with this policy and procedure.
- 5.2 The length of induction will depend upon the individual and the post requirements. However, in order to satisfactorily complete the key activities outlined below, a period of 4-6 weeks is recommended. Consideration will need to be given to the needs of the individual staff member to determine the pace and level of the induction programme.

6.0 Support for Induction

- 6.1 An Induction Checklist, generic in nature, will be used to record key induction activities to be completed by new staff during their first day, first week and first month of employment. Staff will be given an induction folder for the purposes of storing the materials they will receive during the induction period.

7.0 Responsibilities for Induction

7.1 Corporate Manager (CM)

The Corporate Manager will:

- Confirm induction arrangements are in place with the appropriate Line Manager for the employee.
- Confirm induction has taken place in line with this policy and procedure.
- Ensure the induction process meets the business needs of the Association.

7.2 Line Manager

The Line Manager will:

- Plan and implement the induction programme in accordance with this policy and procedure and ensure that it takes place
- Ensure that the “Induction Checklist for New Member of Staff” (Appendix B) is completed accordingly, so they are aware of what will happen in their first day, first week and first month of employment
- Ensure that information offered to employees is up-to-date and presented in a timely and appropriate manner
- Ensure that employees are informed about health and safety legislation and are informed how to access all the corporate policies, procedures and policies relevant to their work

- If available, provide the new employee with an opportunity to shadow another member of staff, appropriate to their future role.
- Ensure that employees receive appropriate training to enable them to fulfil the responsibilities of their job, including mandatory training and any other relevant training/support
- Identify the initial training and development needs of employees and complete learning and development plans
- Monitor the performance of induction within their area and suggest improvements to the process as necessary
- Maintain and promote an interest for induction matters throughout the Association
- Participate in CHA Induction briefings and disseminate information to their staff as appropriate
- Ensure induction meetings are set up with the Corporate Team
- Maintain an agreed supervision record which demonstrates progress through induction and the outcomes at the end of the probationary period in order to inform further supervision and appraisal arrangements.

Whilst the Line Manager is responsible for an employee's induction, it would not be expected that they would cover all the elements personally; individual tasks will be allocated to the Corporate Team in relation to HR, IT, Health & Safety.

7.3 Employee

Employees will:

- Attend and participate in CHA Induction, ensuring that they familiarise themselves with the content of any induction material provided to them
- Ensure their personal details are correct
- Ensure they read and adhere to health and safety legislation, all corporate CHA policies and policies relevant to their work, and where appropriate, their own professional Codes of Conduct, and undertake their duties in a safe manner without endangering themselves or others.
- Participate in induction meetings, and complete mandatory training during the induction period.
- Be pro-active in ensuring that their induction is effective to allow them to undertake their role competently
- Attend probationary meetings with their Line manager to review their progress through the probationary period (length of time will vary depending on the staff member's specific role/responsibility)
- With the assistance of their Line manager identify development and training needs and agree objectives for their initial 6 months in post (probationary period).
- Discuss any questions or concerns that they may have about their progress with their Line Manager

7.4 Corporate Team

For new employees, Corporate will cover core areas via induction meeting and training:

- Facilities
- Health and Safety
- Information
- ICT
- Corporate Governance
- Training Development
- Finance
- Ensure the payroll administration details are completed
- Ensure all relevant documentation is copied to the personnel file
- Issue contract of employment

8.0 Appraisal

- 8.1 Each member of staff receives an annual appraisal in Quarter 2 of each business year. However, formal objective setting and periodic reviews form part of the induction process and should be seen as a pre cursor to appraisal.

9.0 Equality

- 9.1 The Association is an employer committed to Equal Opportunities. All employees must adhere to the Association's policy on Equality & Diversity. The Equality Strategy has been produced with the aim of supporting the CHA's overall strategy to embrace diversity and welcome individuals from all backgrounds. When using this policy, all staff have a responsibility to help maintain a working environment in which the dignity of all employees is respected, also to ensure behaviour is beyond question and not considered offensive.

10.0 Training

- 10.1 Appropriate training will be provided to ensure that individuals have the knowledge, skills and experience necessary to implement and operate this policy.

11.0 Monitoring

- 11.1 The Induction Policy and associated procedures will be regularly monitored and evaluated by the Management Team. Feedback will be obtained from employees involved in the process. The results of this monitoring will be published on an annual basis.
- 11.2 New employees will also be issued with an 'Employee Induction Questionnaire' (Appendix C), which they must complete and return to Line Manager.

APPENDIX A: INDUCTION CHECKLIST

Guidelines for Line Managers

Staff new to the Association must be given the opportunity to receive appropriate guidance on key systems and procedures, be given time to adapt to their new working environment and be provided with adequate opportunities to ask questions.

The Line Manager is responsible for inducting new members of staff. They are responsible for ensuring that all staff new to their area receives an appropriate and fair induction to aid their smooth integration into the Association. This section outlines the suggested procedure to be adopted in providing a generic induction programme for new staff, both prior to employment and throughout employment. This should be completed during the first 4-6 weeks of employment. The duration of the programme is flexible and dependent upon the level of specialism and working patterns of the new staff. This document is offered as a recommended guide of activities for the Chief Executive Officer who may delegate responsibility to the new staff member's line manager.

The programme should provide support, guidance and information pertinent to the new staff's role and responsibility within their area of work. It should include a formal welcome and offer an overview of the organisational structure, objectives and functions of CHA.

This checklist is generic in nature and appropriate for all levels and categories of staff. It contains essential actions and information to cover throughout the induction process. Items on the checklist are not listed in any order of importance as priorities may differ between areas of working. As each activity is satisfied the checklist items should be marked with an X and dated when they were completed. When all items are complete it should be signed off by the Line Manager and the employee with the appropriate date.

The section "Prior to Employment" is to be completed by Line Manager within two weeks prior to the New Employee commencing employment. Each section is then titled "First day", "First week" and "First month" as a suggested guideline.

It should be noted however that the list is not exhaustive, and Line Managers may wish to adapt this further to meet the needs of their business area and requirement of an individual post.

APPENDIX B: INDUCTION CHECKLIST FOR NEW MEMBER OF STAFF

Welcome to the Craigdale Housing Association (CHA)

Your Chief Executive Officer has overall responsibility for your induction but may delegate responsibility to your Line Manager and some tasks to other people.

The induction checklist is intended to help you integrate into your new environment and give you guidance as to what might happen within your first day, first week and first month of employment. Prior to your commencement, your Line Manager would have carried out certain aspects in order to help you settle in better. These include setting up meetings with specific people within CHA such as HR, IT etc. He/she will offer day to day advice and guidance on local procedures and arrangements which will help to speed up the settling in period.

Your Line Manager may have also (if available) set up an opportunity for you to shadow a member of staff who would be appropriate for your future role.

When working through this checklist you will be asked to find out information for yourself. However, your Line Manager will also be able to help you discover what you need to know.

Both you and your Line Manager are responsible for your induction, training and development. It is also your responsibility to contribute to the work of your team and the organisation. As an organisation with a strong focus on quality we are keen to enable you to develop and generate your own ideas as to how we might work more effectively and achieve our objectives.
